Program Characteristics:

Executive Summary

Adult Field Supervision Support includes the Local Control (LC) unit and the operating costs of the Mead building. LC annually supervises over 2,000 felons sentenced to 12 months or less of Local Control, moving offenders between jail and jail alternatives. These felons are being jailed locally instead of being sent to prison. LC also conducts parole hearings for offenders in violation of their supervision and imposes sanctions. Both of these functions are required by law. The combined efforts of timely hearings and alternative custody sanctions to jail accounts for 35,000 fewer jail bed days used each year or a savings of over $3.5 million.

Program Description

The LC unit supervises offenders sentenced to prison for 12 months or less, but who serve their sentence locally. Working with the Sheriff's Office, LC has the legal authority to issue arrest warrants and has jurisdiction over the supervision conditions for these felons. Staff develop jail release plans, monitor offenders from jail to community-based sanctions, and supervise and transfer offenders to community supervision. LC notifies victims when offenders leave jail. Offenders who violate their parole have the legal right to a hearing to determine if a violation has occurred. Hearings Officers conduct local parole hearings and apply consequences. They can order jail releases, recommend revocation of offenders to prison or jail, and make other recommendations to releasing authorities, while using evidence-based practices (Andrews, 1994).

Program Justification

The LC and Parole Hearings unit is instrumental in holding offenders accountable by providing fair and objective investigations, parole hearings, incarcerating offenders when it is appropriate, and actively supervising offenders with practices that research has shown to reduce future re-offending (Andrews, 1994). This unit works in collaboration with the Sheriff's Office, treatment providers and the community to maximize county resources and eliminate duplication. Structured community placements such as electronic monitoring, intensive supervision and residential treatment save the county $1.5 million in jail bed costs each year. Providing timely local parole hearings using evidence-based practices saves an additional $2 million annually in jail bed costs.
