Executive Summary

Multnomah County's High Risk Generic Supervision unit has been nationally recognized for the use of evidence-based strategies, including the development of a system used to identify criminogenic risk factors and potentially violent offenders. Multnomah County receives a greater number of high risk offenders than any other Oregon county and is still able to produce lower recidivism rates for both probation and parole cases.

Program Description

High Risk Generic Supervision uses research-based strategies to supervise high risk offenders on probation and parole. The Department of Community Justice (DCJ) utilizes the Level of Service/Case Management Inventory (LS/CMI) assessment tool to measure the risks and needs of adult offenders. The LS/CMI is also a fully functioning case management tool. The LS/CMI provides a summary of the offender's criminogenic and noncriminogenic factors, as well as special responsivity considerations to be targeted during supervision.

Parole/Probation Officers (PPO) enforce law-abiding behavior and link offenders to treatment, employment and other services. Supervision is conducted through: a) home and office visits; b) contacts with family; c) correspondence with community members and treatment providers; and d) coordination with law enforcement agencies. These methods of supervision help address the offender's daily challenges of drug addiction, mental illness, anti-social attitudes and lifestyle instability.

Adult supervision is an essential component of public safety. Nearly all prison inmates return to their county of sentencing upon release, where they must complete post-prison supervision. The risk of these offenders committing new crimes is reduced when evidence-based supervision is in place and monitored.

Concurrent with the implementation of evidence-based supervision practices, Multnomah County has experienced a steady decline of recidivism rates over the past ten years.

During FY11 this program was awarded a new grant from the US Dept of Justice - with pass-through funding to the Volunteers of America Community Partnership Response program.

This program offer reflects a reduction in current service level due to state funding reductions in 09-11. The scale up 50040B allows the current service level to be maintained.
