Executive Summary

Culturally specific outpatient mental health services provide treatment for five underserved communities in our county (Asian-American, African-American, Eastern European, Latino and Native-American). These communities have encountered difficulty finding mental health treatment that incorporates their culture, tradition and language. These services provide culturally and linguistically relevant care for these populations. Some communities of color are also overrepresented in the criminal justice system. Approximately 750 individuals receive services.

Program Description

The system of care built and maintained by Multnomah County must reflect the demographics of those we serve. To ensure that all members of our community have treatment options that incorporate specific cultural needs, DCHS contracts for mental health services for individuals from five communities currently underserved or insufficiently served. Those communities are: Eastern European, African-American, Asian-American, Latino, and Native American.

Multnomah County Mental Health prevalence data suggests that members of the African-American and Native American communities are more likely than other populations to suffer from severe mental illnesses that require a more intensive level of care. African-Americans are four times more likely to be involuntarily placed in a hospital setting than members of other cultural groups. African-Americans are also overrepresented in jail and the criminal justice system.

The culturally specific services address mental health problems through early access to culturally and linguistically appropriate treatment. Early intervention can mitigate the need for expensive hospital, residential care, or crisis services. Treatment also reduces the risk of inappropriate incarceration or homelessness.

These mental health providers understand community cultural norms and have a relationship of trust with the communities they serve. These providers offer a wide variety of mental health services in a supportive and culturally appropriate setting.
